GREEK ROYALTY FORCED OUT BY THEIR SUBJECTS

King and Queen Leave Athens Tonight Tenth Ruler to be Dethroned in Europe Since War—Republic Probable

VENIZELOS, GREEK IDOL, PROBABLY WILL RETURN

Associated Press

LONDON, Dec 18—An Athens dispatch says the king and queen are leaving for Rumania tonight without signing any decrees and that Admiral Koundouros will be appointed regent. The story of the king's expulsion appears to center around the meetings of the army and navy authorities at whose dictation Premier Gonatas wrote a stern letter to King George intimating his departure by evening was imperative and he agreed. It has been long known that the revolutionary regime desired to banish George in order to pave the way for the return of their idol, Venizelos, and establishment of a republic. George, the eldest son of the late King Constantine, ascended the throne 15 months ago. His wife, Queen Elizabeth, the eldest daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania, familiarly known as the "royal grandmother of the Balkans." George is the tenth king in Europe forced to make his exit since the war.

INCREASE CHURCH MEMBERS 2 YEARS

Laymen Trained by Pastors to Work At Personal Evangelism Given Credit

COLUMBUS, O., Dec 18—The extraordinary increase in church membership during the last two years has been due in a large measure to the work of laymen, according to Dr. Charles J. Goodell, chairman of the committee of Evangelism, at the annual meeting of the Federal Council of Churche today. Throughout the country, he stated, laymen have been trained by their pastors to work two by two in personal evangelism."

Dr. Goodell declares that the growth of the men's Bible classes in unprecedented. He pointed out the where as the churches in the South make their greatest gains in the summer, the churches in the North show the least increase during the hot weather months. He urged that steps be taken to remedy this.

Dr. Goodell made a plea for grace to be said at meals, for family prayer and for the daily reading of the Bible. He said in part:

Great gain is coming to the Church in personal evangelism and in a clearer vision of social obligation through the organized men's classes of the Sunday School. They are enrolling unprecedented numbers, some as high as several thousand in a single class. This is largely through personal and spiritual influence. Christian education is becoming an instrument by which evangelism is being set forward, each becoming the supplement of the other, and the true doctrine is being demonstrated that religion is not a theory but in experience.

The latest figures secured by Dr. W. S. Athearn, dean of Boston University School of Religious Education, and chairman of the Committee of Education of the International Sunday School Council, show that whereas 40 years ago the age of largest church accessions was 164, it is now 119. Thus nearly five years have since added to the Christian life of our people. In the case of 6194 persons who replied to the questionaire ten per cent were received into the church before they were ten years of age and forty-three per cent between the age of ten and fifteen, so that fifty-three per cent were in the church before they were fifteen.

The figures also show that as many were received from five to ten years of age as from thirty-five to eighty. Fifty-eight per cent of the people were received about Easter, while only seven per cent came in the month of August. In the South the summer months are the period of greatest ingathering. Can something be done in the North by way of summer camps to make a sane and happy religious atmosphere that would be conductive to commitment to service on the part of our young people?

We are urging with all our power the practice of worship, a blessing at the table, the family altar, the open Bible."

A THOUGHT

Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer.—1 John 3:15.

Gal No. 7.

When our hatred is too keen it places us beneath those we hate.—La Rochefoucauld.

EAST END NOW OPEN

News that East Cumberland avenue is now open from Tenth to Sixteenth streets is hailed with delight not only by the entire populace of Middlesboro but also by the residents of sections to which this street is a gateway into Middlesboro, their trading center.

We have all been waiting with a sort of constrained patience until this part of the newly paved avenue could be opened to the public and the recent conflicting orders culminating in Saturday's edict that the entire seven blocks would be closed indefinitely have been anything but wholesome. Merchants who had been preparing for a rush from out of town patrons and who had thousands of dollars tied up in merchandise not readily salable after the holidays can certainly be excused for their somewhat heated protests over the matter.

With the order of yesterday by the state engineer to the effect that the street could be used, however, we can readily forgive and forget any inconvenience caused by the closing of the thoroughfare. We are convinced that the contractors have been as anxious as any for the street to be opened and they certainly should not be censured for their reluctance to permit the use of a newly constructed pavement in bad weather. Neither can the state representatives be criticised for delaying action until more than a superficial examination could be made as to the likelihood of possible damages.

The East End paving job has been an expensive proposition and might have been permanently damaged by over haste, hence, the necessity for caution by those responsible for the work.

One week yet remains for out of town people to do their shopping and it is hoped that they will take advantage of the efforts exerted in their behalf by merchants, construction company and state officials. Middlesboro is the logical trading center for thousands of people in the three states within a radius of thirty miles or more and merchants are prepared to meet the most exacting demands.

Therefore, let the new slogan be "East End is open—on to Middlesboro."

THE GIVER WITH THE GIFT

Christmas shopping, the selection of gifts for those we love, may be made a very pleasant occasion. To those who have shopped with right attitude, the old saying that it is more blessed to give than to receive has been made apparent. What a pleasure it is to give some little thing to somebody who is especially near to us. To select something that association has shown this person did not have ,or perhaps to purchase something for which we have heard him or her express a desire. Not in the extravagant expenditure of money but in the sympathetic selection lies the spirit of Christmas shopping that should be followed. Concerning this the Bowling Green Times-Journal ina recent edition says:

"The gift without the giver is bare' is an old familiar saying which well applies to the eleventh hour rush to do our Christmas shopping.

"The gift purchased this way often carries with it very little of the real love and friendship that should be the greater part of the gift. More often it is a purchase made to give in return for some present hoped for or expected.

"Time when a Christmas remembrance meant many hours devoted to a dainty needle work, and much thought and planning, but somehow in the present day rush many of us find it more expedient to select our gifts all complete and ready to deliver.

"Much has been said about the extremes of Christmas giving. There may be much truth in it ,yet the season may come but once a year and using a certain amount of common sense, we can give untold happiness to many.

"Especially must we remember the children—yet even those older would indeed find it a blue and dreary time if they refrained altogether from the giving and receiving of at least some Christmas tokens of remembrance.

"So, Christmas shoppers, get busy today and make your Christmas purchases. Don't stay at home and try to decide what to give John or Mary, but look around in our stores, and you will be sure to find just the gift that suits them best."

GOODY-TWO SHOES GETS A PRIZE

"I'm worn by both beggar and knight."

This was the next riddle that the Riddle Lady made up in Riddle Land:

"I'm worn by both beggar and knight,
Sometimes I am loose, sometimes tight,
Quite often I feel
A bit down at the heel,
And then without doubt I'm a sight.

"Sometimes I am tall, sometimes flat,
As often I'm thin as I'm fat,
The older I grow,
The more wrinkled I show,
But I'm never upset about that.

"Though my body's as black as a coal,
You must know that I boast of a sole,
But the thing I fear,
With old age drawing near,
Is that it wears into a hole.

"I walk further far than I ride,
For I have a remarkable stride,
But the thing that is droll,
When I go for a stroll,
Why, I carry my tootsies inside!

"I bottom up tight, or I lace,
And I whisper that's not a disgrace,
And I've ten perfect toes,
Though I haven't a nose,
And my tongue is as long as my face.

"I've a twen brother, too, if you please!
They say we're as like as two peas,
We are always together,
No matter what weather,
And but for galoshes we'd freeze."

Puss-in-Boots stroked his whiskers thoughtfully. "I might guess the answer if I tried very hard," he said, "but I don't think it fair to take advantage."

"That's what I think," said the Old woman who had so many children she didn't know what to do.

Goody-Two Shoes was passing by and stopped just in time to hear the Old Woman's remark.

"What's all the talking about?" she remarked. "I was just on my way to the cobbler's to get my shoes mended."

"Hey?" What's that?" the Old Gal No. 5 Woman wanted to know. "I'm a little hard of hearing."

"Shoes!" yelled Goody. "I said that I—"

But she hadn't time to finish for all the Riddle Land people called out, she's guessed the riddle. Goody-Two-Shoes guessed the answer without even hearing it. She gets the prize."

Nancy ran to the lucky little girl. "Here," she said, "Here is a pair of nice little red shoes. You won't have to go to the cobbler's after all."

"Forgive him for what?" I asked in surprise.

For a moment little Marquise, Ruth looked embarrassed. "Well, you know very well," she said, "in your own mind you think little Jack belongs to Sydney Carton. You are also quite sure that Jack knows the truth of this. He is afraid, however, to tell you the whole truth for fear you will not forgive him for not telling it to you in the first place."

"That is just it, Ruth, that is just it. We have no business to be afraid of each other. Two people link themselves together in marriage. They live in the same house, they have the same friends, they breed and bring up children, they share poverty and wealth, pleasure and pain, they are supposed to be one.

"Yet they are always strangers in everything that really goes to make up the essentials of life. I think it is their senseless egotistical pride that makes them such misunderstanding persons. They always think they are fooling each other and, if the truth were known, they are only fooling themselves.

"The isolation of married life is a dreadful thing and it seems to me strange that no one as yet, in all the years we have had monogomy and monogomous marriages, has been able to find out how to overcome it. You may say love, if two people really love each other, would do this. But love can do nothing by which two people will grow nearer to each other, into more understanding. For we are all apt to lie to those we love most, just because we love them. We don't want them to see the worst of us. We are ashamed of telling them our mistakes. We are like spiritual peacocks spreading our tails of self-conceit for the others to admire.

"We even lie to ourselves and excuse ourselves by saying the other must not know what we know because it would hurt, when all the while it is because we are either ashamed or afraid to let it be known. We are still like a spiritual peacock and we forget in our self-conceit that our feet are ugly.

"The law of nature, which means of course perpetuation of the race, has nothing to do with the psychology of humanity. Indeed, sometimes I think the power of reasoning rather mixes up things instead of straightening them out."

TOMORROW — The conservation goes on—Love or respect?

Berton Braley's Poem

SOME TIME SINCE

(If it isn't pronounced this way, then the verses are all wrong).

In the days of Tutankomen
Excavations seem to show men
Lived a life not greatly different from ours:
And from reading the inscriptions,
We declare that the Egyptians
Were quite busy, mid their pyramids and towers,
In acquiring worldly treasure,
While they spent their hours of leisure
In pursuit of love and laughter; so we know
All those people intimately,
Who lived gaily or sedately
In the days of Tut-ankomen, some four thousand years ago!

In the days of Tut-ankomen
There were duties they used to throw
Men
Tried to seem much more important than they were;
The Egyptian politicians
Had their little cheap ambitions
And in public life great scandals would occur.
Women had a fervid passion
To be dressed in latest fashion
And the ladies' husbands grumbled as they saw expenses grow;
High society divorces
Ran their brief caloric courses,
In the days of Tut-ankomen, some four thousand years ago!

In the days of Tut-ankomen
Old folks held it as an omen
Of the terrible decadence of the day,
That the flappers of the nation
Mocked the elder generation—
(Which "could never, never happen In our day")
Though no movies gave them shivers,
And there were no chugging flivvers,
Yet in all our daily living Archeology will show
That we haven't got them faded
And are acting much as they did
In the days of Tut-ankomen, some four thousand years ago!

SOMETHIN' TO GO ON

Something to go on
That's what we need,
Call it religion,
Call it creed
Some hopeful message,
Some words of cheer
Something to go on
While we are here

Something to go on,
Something to say
Something to brighten
The darkest day.
Maybe it's foolish,
Trifles of song
Something to go on,
Plodding along

Something to go on
Up hill and dale,
Some thought contagious
That will not fail
Some word of comfort
A singing heart,
Right from the start
Something to go on

Pies

One crust pies make delicious desserts. Everyone usually likes them so there are no disappointed faces when the dessert appears.

Keep in mind the food value of these pies and let them do their part in the meal. If this is done there is no reason pie should be termed as indigestible.

Pies should always be thoroughly baked. It will take them half an hour to one full hour to bake, depending on the filling.

Butterscotch Pie

One cup brown sugar, 2 table spoons flour, 1½ cups water, 2 table spoons butter, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Melt sugar and stir in butter. Beat yolk of egg well, beat in flour and milk and continue beating for three minutes. Add to sugar and butter mixture and cook over hot water until thick. Beat white of egg until stiff and fold into first mixture. Turn into 1 pie dish lined with pastry and bake in a moderate oven until firm to the touch. Let cool and cover with whipped cream.

Coconut Pie

One and one half cup of milk, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon butter, 1 cup shredded coconut, 1 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Beat yolk of eggs with sugar and flour. Scald milk and slowly pour over egg mixture stirring constantly. Add salt and cook over hot water until thick. Remove from fire and add butter and coconut. Christmas Gifts

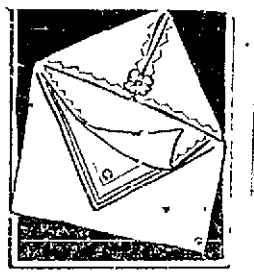
KERCHIEF CASE



Something new and unique is this pretty feminine handkerchief case. Its foundation is a cardboard pad covered with cotton batting dusted with sachet and sewed on to a soft chintz silk cover. A double chintz silk cover on one side acts as a flap under which the handkerchiefs are kept. Over all of this comes 4 dainty plaid or blue ribbons coming together like four leaf clover flaps and snapped underneath with a tiny rosette of the same material.

WALTER CAMP'S ALL-AMERICAN TEAM

POSITION	FIRST ELEVEN	SECOND ELEVEN	THIRD ELEVEN
End	Lemar, Vanderbilt	McRae, Syracuse	Stout, Princeton
Tackle	Milstead, Yale	Wiedenquist, W. & J.	Beam, California
Guard	Hubbard, Harvard	Brown, Notre Dame	Carney, Annapolis
Center	Bloit, Michigan	Lovejoy, Yale	Garbisch, West Point
Guard	Bedenk, Penn State	Aschenbach, Dartmouth	Johnson, Texas A. & M.
Tackle	Sundstrom, Cornell	Dieliel, Lafayette	Bassett, Nebraska
End	Hazel, Rutgers	Tallman, West Virginia	Lannan, Yale
Quarter	Pfann, Cornell	Richeson, Penn State	Dunn, Marquette
Halfback	Grange, Illinois	Tryon, Colgate	Koppisch, Columbia
Halfback	Martineau, Minnesota	Stevens, Yale	Bohren, Pittsburg
Fullback	Mallory, Yale		Nevers, Stanford

Walter Camp has again pulled the unexpected All-American selections. His team is certain to create the usual storm of protest from friends of athletes who have been overlooked.

There is only one repeat on Camp's 1923 selection, Hubbard of Harvard again being selected as one of the guards.

Taylor of the Navy, who drew an end position last season, has been passed up entirely this year, not getting a place on either the second or third team.

The same holds good for Kipke of Michigan and John Thomas of Chicago. Last year Kipke was one of the halfbacks while J. Thomas was picked to play fullback. While Kipke did fall a bit below his 1922 standard, he was still one of the best backs in the west.

Bomar of Vanderbilt who gets one of the end positions was placed on the second team in 1922. Southern critics are a unit in the opinion that Wakefield, the other Vanderbilt end, played much the better game in the season recently brought to a close.

Milstead, Bloit, Bedenk, Sundstrom and Hubbard are forwards hard to beat and richly deserve the honors bestowed on them by Camp.

In the backfield most of the critics favored Pfann, Grange and Mallory as did Camp, but they were not nearly so unanimous about Martineau. The Minnesotta back is a great football player, but Notre Dame with Don Miller, Yale with Stevens and Penn State with Wilson are certain to yell unto the high heavens.

Perhaps the biggest surprise was the naming of Hazel of Rutgers for an end position. Here was the unexpected, upsetting the dope.

While Camp has picked a strong team, a lot of sport editors will be willing to wager dollars to doughnuts that their All-American elevens are stronger.

CURTAIN RUNG DOWN ON STUDENT LIFE IN GREENWICH VILLAGE

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Greenwich Village the Greenwich Village which was a remnant of old New York, which was a link with the Old World, where the customs, manners and liberties of an easier-going civilization provided a heaven for refugees from the hustle and bustle of modern America—has gone.

New York has been robbed of its Latin Quarter, its artists' colony has been disbanded by Broadway, Brooklyn, and the Bronx, aided by prohibition and a housing crisis. The onslaught was begun during the war, when the rest of the country poured into the Village, young and old thirsting for lives of art and liberty, and it has today overcome the last barriers. Gone are the Villagers, and with them the spaghetti, "pieces", the "chip-in" sketch classes, and the "open-house" studio that only a short time ago made the locality famous.

Time was when painters, playwrights, writers, musicians and artists of no particular profession foregathered in the headquarters which have now disappeared. The rule was work hard and play hard. There were those who seemed not to work at all. But that was no one's business. If the idler was a wit, if he loved the beauty the workers tried to create, he was received with open arms. But the interloper, the seeker after atmosphere, was quickly frozen out and sent packing.

The war sent many of the Villagers to foreign fields; many never came back. Most of those who served in France returned there after the war, having found that Paris offered what the Village had one time had. Others achieved the upper rungs of the ladders of their dreams. Still others merely disappeared. All are gone from the old haunts.

In place of the cheap studios and flats hewn out of buildings heavy with age, apartment houses as splendid and as expensive as those of Park Avenue have progressively reared their ten or 15 stories from 14th Street down to Eighth, and hundreds of picturesque old houses have been renovated into similar apartments to contribute to the real estate agents' paradise.

The pleasant Italian and French table d'hotes where once dined in old-world fashion for a small sum, now offer food as an accessory to their red wine. The closed blinds hide from passing policemen groups of men and women who seek their amusement with as much efficiency as they put into the chores in the skyscrapers of workaday New York.

The younger generation is in charge in the tea-rooms. The flapper and her mate, the collegiate (who is more often a clerk), dance and drink and bask in the knowledge that they are emancipated.

In striking contrast are the serious, jaded men and women, young and middle aged, who have come to the Village to dwell and work among the artists. They live for the most part alone, hope against hope for the great success for which their people are waiting, and write glowing letters of progress back home.

The Village has become an outpost of America, the symbol of changing America.

Miss Corinne Merhail of Warren, Ky., was in town Saturday.

Mrs. C. F. Merritt of Lynch is visiting Miss Birdie Merrit of this city.

Miss Myrtle Thompson of Lincoln Memorial university was here yesterday.

W. H. Gildersleeve of New York city is here this week.

Alias Santa Claus

by Hal M Cochran

"DEAR SANTA CLAUS, I wanna doll, a mamma doll, that's all
Now does it seem that that is asking much?
For thus it is that tiny little tots fingers scrawl
A plea that's based on Santa billet and such
A jiggel little urchin who has never come to know
That money buys us our fondest wishes true,
Just writes in wonder innocence a jiggel line or so
Her faith in Santa Claus is up to you!

"DEAR SANTA CLAUS, I'd kinda like an engine and a train
The note is printed letters large and bold!
The youngsters mother reads it and it leaves a heartache sore
Somehow it seems the urchin must be told
That Santa's only mystic and that wishes take in the
And yet it hurts to kill a child's belief
So mother waits—so hopeless—as the shopping days pass by
It's up to you! Red happiness, or grief

"DEAR SANTA CLAUS Please don't forget my mamma and my dad
The parent love of children's centered there
Such a plea alone is quite enough to make the parents glad,
It simply means, to mean a lot I care!
But Santa often fails to heed the note in childish writes
That fact, it seems should concern you and me
For we can save the wishes of a world of needy mites
Making Christmas spirit what it's meant to be!

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas God in his infinite wisdom and love has seen fit to call our beloved friend and co-worker Mrs. John Summers, to her just reward, and

Whereas Believing that the prayer of our Savior for his disciples is answered when he prayed,

Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word that they may be one as thou Father, art in me and I in Thee that they also may be one in us I Father I will that they also, whom thou has given me, be with me where I am that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me!

That she is with Him in that home not made with hands, eternal in the heavens, and

Whereas We shall miss her from her accustomed place in our Missionary circle and Womans Bible Class and will be compelled to pursue our course without the benefit of our counsel, her loving smile her tender word of greeting, her kindly labors with the sick and afflicted and her reflection of that Divine Love and Truth of the Father as exemplified in her every day life

Be it resolved That we, the members of the Womans Missionary Society and the Womans Bible Class of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, thank our heavenly Father for having placed her in our midst, that our lives might be made better by her example and ask that through her reflections of divine truth we might be brought into closer touch with the Spirit of Christ, to the end that we might always as she did surround our dear and neighbors with the mantle of faith hope and love, the greatest heavenly love

Be it further resolved That these resolutions which were adopted in the Missionary Society and Sunday school class assembled be spread upon the records of these organizations, and that a copy thereof be tendered her family to express them our feeling for the wife and mother who's life was a benediction to us all
